Evidence Grows: '20 Election Was Rigged

November 24, 2020 5 min read

Decisive (but targeted, non-ubiquitous) election fraud occurred on November 3. What follows is an explanation and the evidence behind it.

1. Starting in 1997, Smartmatic systems were developed in Venezuela with built-in functionality permitting precinct administrators to override security features it appeared to incorporate. Among the extraordinary privileges it gave administrators were abilities to:
  - shave votes continuously from one candidate to another;
  - batch ballots for later “adjudication” but which instead became a pool of votes that the administrator could simply assign to the candidate of choice;
  - generate blank ballots.
2. Through a series of licensing agreements, bankruptcies, and corporate mergers and acquisitions, that code ended up in various US election systems (e.g., Dominion, ES&S) which (branding aside) still derive from Smartmatic (a.k.a. Sequoia). Thus, they brought to US elections not only the generous functionalities permitting manipulation by administrators, but porous security, extending such powers to those abroad.[\[i\]](#)

3. Since 2006 the fact that systems developed for Hugo Chavez were managing any US elections began striking some prescient Americans as unfortunate.<sup>[iii]</sup> Their trepidation was well-placed: on November 3, 2020 those systems were used strategically & aggressively to rig our election.
  - It was strategic in that it was not “widespread” but targeted at six locations<sup>[iii]</sup> which, if flipped, also would flip the swing states in which they are found (and thus, the electoral college);
  - It was aggressive for the simple reason that Trump broke their algorithm, because he was on his way to a win that exceeded their ability to overcome through minor cheats alone. It is for that reason that in those six locations the bad guys went full-on-goon (e.g., thugs intimidating observers, newspapers taped over windows, “water main breaks” shutting down counting then immediately reopened once Republican observers had departed, etc.)
4. Three forms of evidence<sup>[iv]</sup> backing these claims dovetail perfectly;
  - Documentation of extraordinary privileges Dominion provides administrators;
  - Affidavits describing voters’ and workers’ experiences that match exactly what they would experience in precincts being gooned by the measures I describe;<sup>[v]</sup>
  - Data (such as that below)<sup>[vi]</sup> expressing outrageous statistical oddities (e.g., strings of thousands of sequential Biden votes that occur with quadrillion-to-1 improbability, ballot processing velocity spikes that were physically impossible given available site equipment) that coincide with windows of intense intimidation of and interference with those observing the voting and counting.
5. In each of several swing states Biden achieved a come-from-behind victory with a margin in the tens-of-thousands of votes thanks to getting hundreds of thousands of votes through these measures.

Conclusion: Election 2020 is an egg that can’t be unscrambled.

- Dominion’s machines have glaring design flaws making them vulnerable to hacking. The machines have a slot on their motherboards that should be sealed with glue, but instead is left open: anyone with physical access to the machines can slide in the right chip for a few seconds, and that machine is thereafter completely compromised. In addition, there are R232 ports which would allow someone who accesses that port to connect and get root-level access to the machine without a password.
- Dominion’s uses solarwinds network software. On December 13, the US government pulled solarwinds off all federal networks due to its massive security vulnerabilities.
- Dominion’s servers are widely infected with QSnatch malware (see “CISA says 62,000 QNAP NAS devices have been infected with the QSnatch malware”, ZDNet, July 27, 2020). As poll-workers (e.g., administrators) log-in, QSnatch steals their credentials. Thus not only can administrators override (with no audit trail) election security in a precinct, so can anyone who steals those credentials (which, given the ubiquity of QSnatch on Dominion servers, happens everywhere). Dominion sends out software patches that continuously (deliberately?) allow QSnatch to beat their patches.

- Dominion uses SolarWinds networking software. On December 13, the federal government issued an emergency directive to all federal agencies to mitigate the profound network compromises brought by SolarWinds:

CISA ISSUES EMERGENCY DIRECTIVE TO MITIGATE THE COMPROMISE OF SOLARWINDS ORION NETWORK MANAGEMENT PRODUCTS

Original release date: December 13, 2020 | Last revised: December 14, 2020

WASHINGTON – The Cybersecurity and Infrastructure Security Agency (CISA) tonight issued Emergency Directive 21-01, in response to a known compromise involving SolarWinds Orion products that are currently being exploited by malicious actors. This Emergency Directive calls on all federal civilian agencies to review their networks for indicators of compromise and disconnect or power down SolarWinds Orion products immediately.

“The compromise of SolarWinds’ Orion Network Management Products poses unacceptable risks to the security of federal networks,” said CISA Acting Director Brandon Wales. “Tonight’s directive is intended to mitigate potential compromises within federal civilian networks, and we urge all our partners—in the public and private sectors—to assess their exposure to this compromise and to secure their networks against any exploitation.”

This is the fifth Emergency Directive issued by CISA under the authorities granted by Congress in the Cybersecurity Act of 2015. All agencies operating SolarWinds products should provide a completion report to CISA by 12pm Eastern Standard Time on Monday December 14, 2020.

“The federal government is investigating the takeover last year of a leading American manufacturer of electronic voting systems by a small software company that has been linked to the leftist Venezuelan government of President Hugo Chávez. The inquiry is focusing on the Venezuelan owners of the software company, the Smartmatic Corporation, and is trying to determine whether the government in Caracas has any control or influence over the firm’s operations...”

In 2008, VoterAction (an activist group based in Massachusetts and Washington State) issued a public report (“SEQUOIA VOTING SYSTEMS, INC. USES VOTE-COUNTING SOFTWARE DEVELOPED, OWNED, AND LICENSED BY FOREIGN-OWNED SMARTMATIC, A COMPANY LINKED TO THE VENEZUELAN GOVERNMENT OF HUGO CHÁVEZ”) where they noted:

“U.S. national security is potentially at risk because software used to count votes in 20% of the country during U.S. elections is owned and controlled by a Venezuelan-run company with ties to the Venezuelan government of Hugo Chávez,<sup>1</sup> which has been described as ‘the foremost meddler in foreign elections in the Western hemisphere.’<sup>2</sup> Foreign-owned and foreign-run Smartmatic’s control over vote counting software used in the voting machines of Sequoia Voting Systems... presents a potential national security risk now just as it did in 2006 when the U.S. Committee on Foreign Investment in the United States (“CFIUS”) opened an investigation of Smartmatic’s ownership of Sequoia.<sup>3</sup> CFIUS is a U.S. government inter-agency committee led by the U.S. Department of Treasury that addresses national security risks posed by foreign ownership of or influence over U.S. business, including companies providing the means by which voters in the U.S. elect their President and Congressional Representatives.<sup>4</sup> Rather than answer to CFIUS regarding the ultimate owners of the Smartmatic conglomerate<sup>5</sup> and its ties to the Chávez government, an investment group led by Sequoia management reportedly bought Sequoia from Smartmatic in late 2007 under terms that were not made public.<sup>6</sup> Since then, however, it has come to light that Smartmatic continues to own the software that counts the votes on Sequoia voting machines and licenses to Sequoia that software, which Smartmatic develops in Venezuela.<sup>7</sup> Concern, now, is that Smartmatic's sale of Sequoia "was fraudulent",<sup>8</sup> "a sham transaction designed to fool regulators."<sup>9</sup> Efforts to date have not succeeded in determining the ultimate owners of Smartmatic or the extent to which Smartmatic and the Chávez government of Venezuela have influence over U.S. elections through Smartmatic's control of the software that counts votes for Sequoia voting machines..."

See also this 2015 Philippines TV interview where Smartmatic's chairman Mark Malloch-Brown (who, oddly enough, also serves as Vice-Chairman of George Soros's investment fund and Open Society Institute) initially danced around such Venezuelan connections (note his oh-so-careful parsing of words in this regard) before eventually acknowledging a licensing arrangement between Dominion and Smartmatic.

[\[iv\]](#) Due to my impatience waiting for these facts to bubble up through legal proceedings, and due to the extraordinary nature of the circumstances, I felt it was appropriate to create an article and get it live as soon as possible in order to make the Big Picture available to the public, then add charts and links and other evidence as time and opportunity allowed. As a result, I first posted this essay on the evening of Monday, November 23 and since then have been adducing further evidence since then. That way there will be one article that both tells the story succinctly, yet also gathers in one place much detail backing my claims.

[\[v\]](#) By way of example: Sharpie/Bic switcheroos experienced in Maricopa precincts reflect a wish to generate a large pool of "adjudicated ballots" for administrators, who could drag-and-drop them later to Candidate Biden.

Hi Amazing Troubleshooters!

First and foremost, I want to thank you all for supporting this historic election. From my seat in the Command Center today, I finally had the chance to marvel at the numbers and feel unbelievably grateful for all of you working so hard in support of democracy. Thanks isn't good enough, but THANKS!!

Next, we've heard you and we know you're hearing issues and concerns about the Sharpie Markers. Starting tomorrow, 10/23, and through 11/2, we are asking that Clerks hand voters BALLPOINT PENS rather than markers. We NEED to use Markers on Election Day, but for now and through 11/2, hand voters a Ballpoint Pen. You have plenty of pens in your supplies right now.

Please message this to your Inspectors and ensure they cascade this change down to everyone on the Board.

If you have questions, please let me know.

I hope you have a GREAT WEEK!

In the case of each of other spikes, both parties get a significant fraction of the votes. The end-of-count spike is the one that suddenly gives Biden a ton of votes with miniscule Trump vote.

Dear Patrick,

The future of our country hinges on the proofs of election fraud, and I salute your efforts and patriotic sacrifices in uncovering and analyzing those proofs.

My question is, will mathematical models and hypotheticals be sufficient for “proof” to carry the day in court, or will they be dismissed as “interesting statistical probabilities but not conclusively persuasive” evidence without DIRECT proof of say, discovering the electronic logs of the Smartmatic program in the questionable precincts or from wherever the program was controlled, and from that, showing that either a predetermined algorithm kicked in, or that a human(s) doing keystrokes (or inserting flash drives (or doing whatever they did) actually CAUSED the specific instances of vote changing, vote deletion, vote addition, etc.

In short, in a court of law, absent hard evidence of human intervention, does the mathematical / analytical theory — that is supported by expert statistical testimony and detailed analysis — stay just that, i.e., a “theory” that is hypothetically possible and quite interesting but unproven without showing how, when, and where the humans did it ?

That is what I worry about.

God Bless, my friend.

Regardless, the fire destroyed the house and you have to start over.

2.  Steve says:

December 6, 2020 at 11:34 pm

Would it strictly be necessary to find the arsonist? In this case, the wrong that must be corrected is the fraudulent results, even if the parties responsible are never isolated and punished. You can correct one wrong without necessarily punishing the offenders individually.

You sir have hit the nail on the head. I will answer as best I can with the education I have recently received about courts of law.

Facts are what are proven in a trial. Here is where Sidney would have to prove actual voter fraud back up by hard facts. Not just statistics unless they were very compelling.

The SCOTUS does not decide facts, they answer constitutional arguments. "Most" cases must go to trial and work their way up to the SCOTUS..

BUT!!!! There are a couple of cases, like Brown v. Board of Edu, where statistical data proved beyond a shadow of doubt that citizens rights were constitutionally violated.

There is more than enough statistical data to prove that Trump voters had their constitutional rights violated under the 14th Amendment. Chief Justice Roberts has argued this point in the past.

This would cause the SCOTUS to throw out the election and then Congress would choose the Pres and VP.

There are super clear fraud patterns in the data stream as batches of data after the overnight count injections are frozen in the Biden Trump proportions MI WI GA VA. The reported state level results show subtractions from Trump and additions to Biden, and deletions of Trump votes. How do you get a batch of negative ballot counts? Gatewaypundit's series "we caught them" has those tables

It is incontrovertible undeniably synthetic count.

For PA a more subtle clock rotation among precincts was used to hide the fixed ratios by distributing them.

You can partially back calculate the original votes from the state level data, but the ward/precinct level data will reveal much more, as the election interference was nationwide and as Dr. Shiva pointed out, it is more subtle and operated gradually on individual precincts by removing proportionally more Trump votes the higher the republican vote share was. He did a deep dive on MI, he may do more states.

The bottom line is that you can do the top level reversal of the manipulation and get a Trump win in PA MI WI GA VA. AZ was a simple dump during election day.

I'm confused by the green dotted line on the one Georgia graphic. What does the green line represent and what to the numbers on the right axis refer to? Numbers from 0 to 16 in increments of 2? The key says this is the Biden vs. Trump turnout ratio, but I'm not really sure what that means and it's relevance?

1.  Anonymous says:

November 26, 2020 at 11:27 am

Hopefully my answer helps.

At a high-level it says Douglas, Fayette, Cobb, Henry, Forsyth and Gwinnett counties have vastly different results in 2020 compared to 2016 relative to other Georgia counties. A ratio of 1 or close to 1 would say the 2020 & 2016 results are very similar or exactly the same. Is there a valid explanation or does the precinct level information make sense for these counties? Are there more whistle-blowers in these counties compared to other Georgia counties reporting voter irregularities? I don't know the answer to these questions.

I believe the green-dot also says that Joe Biden outperformed Hillary Clinton in every county except Clayton county (unless the results change).

Comparing the 2016 results per county the green dot essential represents the difference between 2016 & 2020 total votes for Joe Biden compared to Donald Trump per county.

In Clayton county, Trump's increase in 2020 vs 2016 votes was LARGER or better than Joe Biden's 2020 vs Clinton's 2016 vote increase. In 2016 Trump had 12645 votes compared to 15813 votes in 2020. A 25% increase of votes in 2020. However, Joe Biden received 95476 votes in 2020 compared to Hillary Clinton's 78220 votes in 2016. A 22% increase. The green-dot line value slightly less than 1 or 22/25.

In Douglas county, Trump has 634 more votes in 2020 (25451) compared to 2016 (24817). Joe Biden has 11804 more votes in 2020 (42809) compared to 2016 (31005 Hillary votes). Trump's votes increased by 2.6% but Joe Biden votes increased by 38% so the ratio is around 15 (38/2.6).

Please see Rockdale county in the chart right below the chart with the green dotted line. Trump's 2020 vote total was 13012. His 2016 vote total was 13470. So Trump's total votes in 2020 dropped by 3.4% in Rockdale. However, in Rockdale county Joe Biden's total votes were 31244 compared to Hillary Clinton's 23255 total votes in 2016- Joe Biden increased total votes by 35%. Seems like Rockdale county also has vastly different results in 2020 compared to 2016.

Regardless of whether yours (and those of others) information gathering/sharing alter the publicly perceived/media promoted election results you have gained my respect and admiration for your efforts. If only for the sake of future elections it is imperative that the flaws/exploits in the current voting system(s) must be addressed in whole. One of the biggest challenges currently is every state, and every county within a state can, and in many cases do, have different methods, rules, and avenues to challenges any given election result(s).

The current system flaws have benefited both Republicans and Democrats over the course of time but I think the Republicans in whole may have made the decision that these flaws have become more of a liability than an asset during election cycles. IF this is the case hopefully they will support/sponsor wholesale election reform.

It boggles the mind that as a country we are openly touting our soon to be ability for space travel yet we lack the technology/ability to deploy a simple yet bulletproof voting system that would eliminate the shenanigans and vote stealing that IS NOT NEW but is only now being placed under a magnifying glass by many concerned citizens.

Please continue your efforts and know they are greatly appreciated.

Take a look at vashiva.com website for a Republican fraud example.

Dr Shiva ran in the Republican Massachusetts primary and investing voter machine fraud since Sept. in his Republican primary. He is an expert witness for Powell, Trump, and his data is used by state legislatures. These lawsuits are uncovering potential very deep state/establishment fraud. CIA is even called out to. Just look at Russiagate and how many people were involved in other branches. The people spoke last time and establishment is under fire trying to squash the constitutional revolution. Dr Patrick and Dr Shiva are patriots and hope justice and truth prevail with these guys going in the history books saving our country!

Patrick, my hope is that Sidney Powell, Lin Wood, and the Team team can utilize excellent analysis like this by you and others dedicating their time and effort to getting to the bottom of this obvious fraud. Thank you so much for your diligent work. You're a true patriot.

However, looking beyond this deliberate fraud conducted by Democrat politicians and foreign actors working in concert, there's the issue of a valid secure solution. I understand that you are, in part, a blockchain guy these days. Doesn't it seem that this is the perfect opportunity and timeframe to create a secure, immutable, and transparent blockchain solution that makes it virtually impossible for anyone to cheat in any way? In my opinion, this is the only sure-fire solution that erases it from the possibility of happening again in the future? There would be some legal hurdles, but I think it needs to be done ASAP.

The most true statement here is you are a one man show. It is sad to see your desperate attempt to stay relevant after your super double agent spy story fell flat on its face. You went from respected business man and a colleague I respected to the store brand version of Rudy Giuliani. The graphs only show what everyone already knew, mail in voters were counted later and dems voted by mail. Why aren't you talking about the Trump lead increasing in Arizona? Why aren't you talking about suburban women voting against Trump? Why aren't you talking about the down ballot Republican successes? Because it doesn't fit your narrative. Charts can tell the story anyone wants to tell, surely your last CMO at Overstock taught you that? You used to like to be compared to George Washington and his leadership style. Let us do a better comparison and compare you to Benedict Arnold, a successful war hero that felt like he didn't get adequate recognition so his ego led him to betray his nation. That is you, and that is Trump. It is no surprise you have a soft spot for Trump toxic narcissism and delusions of your own greatness are common traits between you. How far you have fallen and how said it is to watch. The fact you can't believe that such a flawed, toxic, corrupt president would get 80 million votes against him demonstrates you don't live in reality. Nobody will remember you, nobody will see you as a hero, you will be forgotten except to a handful of QAnon followers and Newsmax viewer. Sad. Pathetic. Heartbreaking. Disappointing

Come on Justine, this election theft goes beyond the data trend anomalies (which are legit impossible), and into a multi faceted coup that was designed to guarantee a victory. If Biden/Harris had a scruple left to share, they'd be wanting this election to be fair and free. As it stands, more than half the voting citizens in this country do not trust the results and believe there were serious shenanigans that need to be addressed. Biden/Harris would do THEMSELVES and their potential win a favor by encouraging a decent investigation....or maybe they know something we don't (that this election was stolen)?

Correction needs to be made The most true statement here is you are not a one man show. Thousands of others have undergone the same problems asking the same questions and getting same results. Nothing! Reasonable Doubt should start with evidence. However what happens when it won't even be considered? When a Criminal act has been committed we're told to report it to law enforcement. So what happens if they won't except the complaint? It shunts the ability to start the legal process.

I deeply thank you, Sir,

I thank you so much for your efforts and for putting this together. I sincerely commend you,

We went to Washington DC last weekend for the March to support our President Donald Trump. I truly believe that Donald Trump IS the winner of the 2020 election. The absence of the democratic party in our media since the election is not even believable. The aspect of what cheating went on in specific states was a TARGETED effort to skew the election for dimwitted Hiden Biden. Even though the daily news cites that everything is over, which I refuse to follow for many reasons. The crowd in DC was between 500,000 to 750,000 people if not more. I know I was there. Also, we went to the Lincoln Memorial on Sunday. Where a Trump supporter with a Trump Flag stood in front of the Lincoln Statue and waved that flag to which we all chanted how proud we are of the USA. About 30 or so of us present at the time. We have a video of this. We were almost immediately shut down by the DC park police, under the threat of giving us all tickets for unlawful assembly.

I love this country and am sick and tired of the corruption at the highest levels of government and want to start seeing people that have broken election laws go to jail.

Regards,

A. Wegener

Thanks for all your work on this fraudulent election, Patrick! I really appreciate it, and I think you are dead over the target with your analysis. The one thing I and many others have been concerned with is how do you explain the computer data theory to a computer illiterate court, and I think I have come up with a simple solution.

Basically, Trump's lawyers need to simulate the voting system and demonstrate how the "flip" or vote transfers are done. And to do that they need to setup a couple of Dominion voting machines; a server to capture the votes; someone on a server-attached computer with the software used to control the vote; and people to vote a certain way. Once they vote, the computer operator could demonstrate how the votes are transferred or flipped to the other candidate. And even with that they may be asked if they have proof it was done. Of course, Trump's lawyers would have the charts showing the spikes, but they will possibly need people to testify that they did it, or they coordinated or watched someone do it. Hopefully other data showing how poor of a candidate Biden was will lead the court to decide the election was stolen.

I'm praying for Sidney Powell, and that reminds me. I need to send her a donation.

Thanks Again For Your Great Efforts!!!

Thank you Patrick. I've followed you since 2013 as a precious metals & crypto enthusiast. In addition to the dominion fraud, I have done citizen audits in Absentee voter registration lists in Wisconsin, and personally witnessed hundreds of fraudulent & Literal duplicate votes which are unquestionable as the public data can be accessed by anyone.

The fraud takes place by people voting under multiple assumed identities. I.e someone who goes by Christopher as well as Christine.

This is a multi pronged attack using ballot harvesting, fake / duplicate votes, as well as the malicious cyber activity you outlined.

Thank you for your commitment to the truth.

In Georgia and Pennsylvania the strategy seems to have been a long and statistically impossible series of 4800 (Georgia) and 6000 (Pennsylvania) vote dumps beginning after 10 PM on election night. see centralitynews.us

1.  Dylan Zwick says:

November 24, 2020 at 1:36 pm

This is just a rounding issue. The underlying data reports the vote total, and then the percentage of those votes going to each candidate. These percentages are only given at .1% precision, so the smallest change in a candidate's vote total that can be detected is .1% of the overall vote.

You can check that the "vote dumps" are almost exactly .1% of the vote total, which is why you see about 4800 in Georgia (about 4,800,000 total votes) and 6000 in Pennsylvania (about 6,000,000 total votes).

1.  Anonymous says:

November 24, 2020 at 2:14 pm

Yes, you are right. But what about the spikes?

1.  Dylan Zwick says:

November 24, 2020 at 4:37 pm

It's again just a rounding issue. At a precision of .1%, you're not going to detect relative changes in a candidate's votes smaller than .1% of the vote total. I'll illustrate with an example. Suppose you have the following sequence of updates:

Biden Trump Vote Total

49.4%	49.3%	6670421
49.4%	49.3%	6670727
49.4%	49.3%	6673676
49.4%	49.3%	6673812
49.4%	49.3%	6673827
49.4%	49.3%	6673851
49.4%	49.3%	6673915
49.4%	49.3%	6678806
49.4%	49.3%	6679106
49.4%	49.3%	6681723
49.5%	49.3%	6688707

The candidate percentages remain unchanged until the last update, where Biden's percentage changes by the smallest possible amount. Now, let's suppose for the sake of argument that on the first row Joe Biden has exactly 49.4% of the total vote, and Trump has exactly 49.3% of the total vote. Or, at least, as close as they could possibly be to exactly those percentages. Their votes would be:

Biden: 3295188
Trump: 3288518

Now, that first update adds 306 to the total number of votes. If all 306 went to Biden, his percentage would increase from 49.4% to 49.402% (rounded to the 1000th place), while Trump's would decrease from 49.3% to 49.298%. Rounded to the nearest .1%, both Trump's and Biden's percentages would remain unchanged. Same idea if all 306 went to Trump. So, how did those 306 votes get distributed between the two candidates? The answer is, we don't know, and can't know given the precision of these numbers. It's a mistake to conclude because the percentages stayed at 49.4% and 49.3% respectively that the 306 votes split equally between Biden and Trump. And this isn't even taking into account that some of those votes are probably for other candidates, which adds a little more uncertainty.

So, what can we know? If you take those 10 updates in aggregate, that Biden comes out around .1% of the total (6700 votes) ahead of Trump, but we definitely do not know that all those excess votes came as a spike on that final update. All the analysis I've seen around this particular claim is based upon this misunderstanding.

Hope that's clear.

I think the election was stolen, seems as obvious as it could be. But I have looked at data every day for 20 years – I am worried there are rounding errors here also, that will water down what would otherwise be a solid case.

Patrick, maybe you could explicitly tackle this in your analysis?

3.  Anonymous says:

And yet by your own admission the vote count is manipulated. And a whole lot more than you claim. My question for you is this Dylan. Why are you OK with any voting manipulation?

A vote, is a vote, is a vote. Once counted it does not change, and yet we have this here in every swing state. Why are you trying to justify the stealing of an election? Why are you trying to say since it is so little it doesn't matter? You are disengenuous at best.

2.  Dylan Zwick says:

November 24, 2020 at 4:56 pm

Realized my first explanation might have been a bit too involved. Here's a more simple example. Suppose you have 9 updates, and at each update Biden's percentage of the overall vote changes by .01%. The rounding to the nearest tenth of a percent is also provided:

48.66% -> 48.7%
48.67% -> 48.7%
48.68% -> 48.7%
48.69% -> 48.7%
48.70% -> 48.7%
48.71% -> 48.7%
48.72% -> 48.7%
48.73% -> 48.7%
48.74% -> 48.7%
48.75% -> 48.8%

If you've only got precision to .1%, it will look flat until you finally see that .1% "spike" at the end, even though the underlying changes are much smoother than that.

It seems I can't reply directly after a certain depth, so this is in response to the questions about those other spikes.

My response doesn't address those. It's specifically in response to the question about the sequences of approximately 4800 (Georgia) or 6000 (Pennsylvania) votes, which I thought were the spikes to which the questioner was referring.

But no, the spike in Michigan is definitely not a rounding issue.

I'm a fan but think you are misguided on the AZ sharpie gate. I was a poll worker. First you need to address Maricopa's official statement. <https://youtu.be/aNhCcimt6No> On Election Day mostly sharpies were used and virtually all were read by the tabulator. Yes there were overvotes but the tabulator identified the race and most were on judges – we had many of them. I'm not saying that they didn't have a nefarious reason for requiring sharpies but I don't think it was to kick out ballots (maybe it was easier to allow these votes to be switched?) Please address this because, IMO, your position on the AZ sharpies demeans your entire thesis.

Thanks Jay. That was exactly my point. I saw thousands of these ballots being fed through the tabulator. None of them showed an “over vote” for the presidential race (prior to “pressing the green button” there is a small LCD screen that described what race causing the problem – and most were in judge races). Also, they all went through as being counted. With all due respect, I’m not sure Patrick has actually seen how the tabulator worked. His explanation of how the tabulators worked is generally correct but is missing specific details. Based on how he has described it, the “pool of ballots” that they could play with would be the ones that couldn’t be accepted by the tabulator (and were put in the front slot). Out of the 1k+ ballots at our site there were probably only 20 or so ballots that went into this slot. Also, at the beginning of day a tape was printed that showed zero votes for each race. At the end of the night a tape was printed that showed the number of votes for each candidate in each race (it was a very long tape). If there was any “vote switching” going on, my opinion – as a CPA and former auditor who worked at one of the largest independent accounting firms – it could be pretty easily detected by a hand count of the paper ballots compared to this tape. Just saying. We need to make sure we are dealing with facts.

1.  Patrick Byrne says:

November 24, 2020 at 6:43 pm

Where you voted, was everybody told they needed to use Sharpies? If they had been, perhaps you would have seen more than 20 votes to adjudicate.

1.  Karen says:

November 24, 2020 at 7:08 pm

It wasn't where I voted – I actually worked at the site on election day from 6 am to 8 pm. And yes, everyone was using Sharpies – that is what we were handing out. If anyone asked I explained it was due to the time needed for the ink to dry and wet ink causing issues with the tabulator. If anyone insisted, however, on using a ballpoint pen (mostly because they didn't like the bleeding) they were allowed to use the ballpoint pen. I would say that 95% of the ballots at my site – on election day – were filed out with a Sharpie. And no, there were no more than 20 votes that needed to be adjudicated. The large majority of the “sharpie” ballots were fed into the tabulator and the message on the LCD screen indicated that they had been accepted. When there was a problem it usually related to a judge race (and once we kicked the ballot out to review it, I could see why it was rejected. Typically, the voter had completely filed in the “yes” oval but had a small mark in the “no” oval. I told them they could go get another ballot and start over. Or, they could completely fill in both the “yes” and “no” ovals for that race – most choose this option. Once they did that, when the ballot was fed back in, the LCD would show an over vote for that race and then the green button would be lit. If they pressed that button, the ballot would be accepted. I understood from my training by Maricopa, that by pressing that button they only race that wouldn't be counted would be the one with the over vote. NEVER did I see an over vote for the presidential race.

2.  Sam Fox says:

December 30, 2020 at 10:43 pm

I saw a video that demonstrated that when a Sharpie is used, the ballot doesn't work. The person Sharpied a ballot, the ballot wasn't read. Then the ballot was taken to a screen that could vote for anyone the person handling the ballot wanted to click in. It was a way of changing who was 1st voted or making sure the ballot handler's choice was put in.

I also understand Sharpies were used in R heavy districts.

SamFox

3.  Shawn says:

November 24, 2020 at 3:10 pm

I'm not sure a video from the very people who may be committing a crime is the correct one to use to back up your opinion. If you ask a criminal if they committed a crime, they will tell you no. Are you supposed to ignore the mountain of evidence against them? This also doesn't explain why poll workers told people NOT to use their own ballpoint pens, and "only" use the sharpie pens. Nor does it explain why poll workers were telling people to ignore the "warning" sign popping up on the machines after people fed in their ballots and to just hit the "green" button anyway to submit the ballot. People who did this were later seeing their votes not recorded.

1.  Karen says:

November 24, 2020 at 6:51 pm

Shawn, I agree. But. In order to defend your position you need to refute that opposing view. Maricopa's explanation for the using sharpies on election day and ballpoint pens for early voting was due to the time it takes for ink to dry on sharpies vs pens. They said that the wet ink caused malfunctions in the tabulator. Sounds like that can be something that should be easily verified. So, to answer your question, that's why they told people not to use the ballpoint pens (although if someone used a pen they were accepted and fed through the tabulators). As for the "warning" signs, with all due respect, I don't think Patrick has described it as it actually happened. Has he seen one of these machines in action? I have. What happened is that once you fed the ballot through one of two things would happen. Option 1: The ballot would be accepted (dropped into the box underneath the tabulator) and the LCD screen would show a large green check mark. Option 2: The screen would show a message saying there was a problem (identifying which race). The ballot would still be in the tabulator. There was a green button (accept) and a red button (return ballot). Most of the times, when there was a problem only the red button would be lit – meaning that the workers wouldn't have been able to tell the voter to “just hit the green button. They would need to hit the red button, the ballot would spit back out of the machine and the voter could then correct the race that was indicated as the problem. After feeding it back, if there was still a problem (which would be described on the LCD screen), they were then given the option of hitting either the green or red button. My understanding is that by hitting the green button, it was only affecting the “problem” race – which – as I said – was usually a judge race. Never did I see an over vote on the presidential race. As for “people seeing their votes not recorded” there is no way that relates to the election day votes. IMO, that occurred when a voter had been mailed an early ballot and choose instead to vote on election day. The “not recorded” or “cancelled” message that they got if they checked their vote on the Maricopa website was in regard to the early vote being cancelled since they logged in on the site book on election day to vote in person. Again, I am not saying there wasn't something in the software that was playing around with the votes but what Patrick is describing doesn't jive with my personal hands on experience.

4.  RageBringer says:

November 24, 2020 at 6:43 pm

Sharpies were used and when scanned the tolerance of the machine could be adjusted to require adjudication. The adjudication could then be overridden and the person doing the work select any candidate they want the votes to be given to. Having REP vote in Sharpie made it easy to consolidate the Trump votes, have issues with adjudication then flip all those to Biden with override.

1.  Karen says:

November 24, 2020 at 7:16 pm

Perhaps. But as I said, once the ballot was fed in the LCD screen would indicate successful tabulation with a green check mark. I don't see how this would allow for later adjudication. Also, to be clear, EVERYONE was given Sharpies on election day – not just republicans. Based on the voter registration cards and the electron site book used to check the voters in, I would say that our voters were pretty evenly split between reps, dems and independents. Finally, they would need to contend with the actual paper ballots and end of the night tabulator tape showing the vote counts. If votes got switched, it would be detected by an audit of the paper ballots vs tape vs official count. While Maricopa has not done a full audit, I understand that they did audit 10% of the voting sites.

QSnatch can infect much more than just QNAP NAS appliances which actually use an embedded Linux operating system. It can infect Windows too. It could infect Linux servers hosted in the Cloud. It can install itself into browsers, etc. It's particularly nasty piece of malware whose operators are rather sophisticated. The thing about malware is that it evolves. Pieces of one malware become added to new malware. Dominion software is so incredibly bad about security it wouldn't surprise me at all to hear their servers have malware. Doesn't matter if it's QSnatch or any other malware. Their entire architecture and design is severely flawed. But even with the absolute best security and best design practices all digital systems are subject to fraud and abuse. People buying those smart door locks where hackers with an Android phone can unlock them with ease. Telsa keyfobs and mobile apps have a flaw that allows anyone with the knowledge to drive off in any Tesla in mere seconds. Perhaps easier and faster than trying to force a mechanical locking mechanism.

Elections with a ballot paper trail and hand counting is slow and tedious but the results can be observed, monitored and verified accurate. If these digital solutions were so much better then why are they still counting? It's been 17 days! Come On Man!

Curious what a sharpie/bic switcharoo is? I don't watch the news so I apologize if this is already well-established knowledge.

1.  Anonymous says:

November 24, 2020 at 1:50 pm

In Maricopa County (Arizona) voters reported that the precincts made them use Sharpie pens to fill out ballots instead of bic/pens. This was to take advantage of a feature in the voting system called an adjudication queue. Sharpies bleed through the paper which causes the voting machine to fail to register the vote. It falls into a special queue that allows the poll worker to manually view the ballot image and drag and drop the vote into the appropriate candidates bucket. The problem is the feature allows you to drag and drop hundreds of items from the queue at a time so, an enterprising fraudster can fool voters into using sharpies to force their ballots into the special queue and then voila, they can just assign the votes to whomever they want to.

1.  Karen says:

November 24, 2020 at 7:23 pm

As I've described above, I was a poll worker in Maricopa (and have been on the Trump train since day one). Patrick's explanation of the "adjudication queue" is inconsistent with my first-hand experience. Virtually all of the election day ballots at my site were filled out with Sharpies and most of these were registered by the tabulator as being counted. That is not to say that something happened later in the tabulation process but there was not a mass rejection of the Sharpie ballots. And, everyone – not just republicans – were given Sharpies on election day.

1.  Patrick Byrne says:

November 24, 2020 at 9:19 pm

Straw man argument. Nowhere did I claim that in Maricopa only Republicans were given Sharpies. You just made up that claim and put it on me.

1.  Karen says:

November 25, 2020 at 6:43 am

Patrick, I'm on your side. I'm not trying to put anything on anyone. I know that there was fraud in this election and I want to get to the truth. I clarified that ALL were given sharpies – not because you said it (you didn't) but because some of the other comments seem to be under the impression that Sharpies were given out strategically. It doesn't help us if we go down the wrong rabbit hole – a hole that the dems might have put there to distract us.

2.  Dr M says:

November 25, 2020 at 11:24 am

In most parts of the county, voters on Election Day were predominantly Trump supporters. So Trump votes could be more likely affected if the change to sharpies occurred on election day.

3.  Chris Jones says:

November 26, 2020 at 12:11 am

There was a letter sent out by an election official instructing precincts to use ballpoint pens for the days leading up to election day, but to switch to markers on election day. Exact quote: “We NEED to use Markers on Election Day, but for now and through 11/2, hand voters a Ballpoint Pen. You have plenty of pens in your supplies right now.”

NEED?

That sounds very suspect. You can read the letter here. <https://nationalfile.com/leak-email-allegedly-from-maricopa-elections-office-found-issue-with-sharpies-said-use-them-on-election-day-anyway/>. This election official has now deleted all of her social media.

Furthermore, Arizona instructions for filling out ballots recommend you don't use a Sharpie. Here: <https://www.thegatewaypundit.com/2020/11/arizona-ballot-instructions-specify-not-use-sharpie-may-not-read-tabulator/>

I don't know what shenanigans were going on, but it's likely a poll worker (like you) wouldn't be told the reasons behind the switch from ballpoint to Sharpie on election day. Her email tips her hand. I remain unconvinced that nothing nefarious was afoot.

I want to bring up something I have heard NOTHING about in Arizona. So my son’s father who a long time ago put his drivers license address to my home.... he has never registered to vote. This election I start getting voting stuff at my address for him. Then my friend Andy at his drivers license address which remains his mom’s address, gets a ballot... he also never registered to vote. In Arizona, to register or check your registration status you need a few personal identifiers... and an identifier of choice such as last 4 of SS#, voter ID# or “Drivers License” number.... so it seems someone with access to DMV records was registering unregistered adults using the driver’s license info. Andy never registered himself because he is a felon and has not gone through the process to restore his rights... but Arizona seems to be in an on your honor system with felons and voting... as the Maricopa County recorder says his voting status is “active”. One he never registered for!

Not sure if you can answer these questions below but might help folks to understand more.....

1. If you expected this computer fraud , did members of DOJ/POTUS also expect and did they prepare for it OUTSIDE of your own organization ?
2. If YES , who would have monitored the steal. CIA ? DOJ ? MILITARY folks ?
3. When this coup is proven how can it be fought and defeated with such massive and obvious corruption on DC (everywhere > MSM, Big Tech, Dems , RINOs , CIA, DOJ(even Barr ?), FBI , Judges(Flynn case) , even Military ? SC(Roberts ?) just who can POTUS and the American people rely to fight this coup?

Can POTUS + 75 M patriots overcome ALL levers of power in the USA ? legally ?
I hope so , but I fear the worst if the SC and US Military are also corrupted.
the Americans I know will NOT put with this under any circumstances and their anger WILL boil over.

The people who instigated this potential for violence are truly dangerous, corrupt , arrogant, desperate and evil.

Thank you for the info Mr. Byrne. You are a patriot and telling the truth in a world of lies is radical. The only problem I see here is how are these charts going to prove to the SCOTUS that there was a fix? Sure, they can see the numbers on a chart but can they see them on the ballots themselves? I don't think the SCOTUS will review one ballot. We have to have an individual machine and its code showing the fraud. Then we need all the machines in these 5 cities and their code to show all the fraud. Without that, I think we are all like Chuck...

61.  Anon says:

November 24, 2020 at 2:26 pm

The graphs don't match the narrative. The graphs are consistent with large 'bumps' for Biden when the absentee ballots are counted. The Michigan one looks odd as there is not an apparent uptick in Trump votes when the absentees hit. But the Georgia one shows simultaneous jumps. I don't know how the API hit but in Michigan you do see a smaller but significant Trump jump after the first absentees hit. Also odd but not consistent with your thesis.

It's a big disconnect to say the vote in the cities is manipulated and then to show the state data. You need to isolate reporting from within a city to see if there are badges of fraud (like Trump vote dropping).

Big picture this seems backfooted and implausible if you assume as alleged vote counts could be hacked. The simplest thing would be to just manipulate the November 3 in person feeds (eg hack the red county feeds). Also not sure this could be done for counties that have paper votes. Any incorrect tabulation should be caught and flagged in canvassing.

62.  Anon says:

November 24, 2020 at 2:42 pm

The other possibility for the oddity about Biden jumping but not Trump in Michigan when the absentees hit is that the early batches were sorted, and reported at different times.

But again, if what was done was manipulation of the absentees that wouldn't be a Dominion thing. And it's a lot easier to catch. Those ballots exist physically or they do not. Virtually all counties in Michigan voted along the lines of what history and conditions on the ground would tell you they would. The exceptions are that Trump got about 5k Detroit votes than in '16, and Detroit turnout was flat. If Detroit turnout was as high as in other counties it would have been more like the six or eight Trump loss most polls predicted. Kent County going blue was a mild surprise but consistent with the polling that Trump was doing poorly with college educated voters. Obama also did well in Kent County. Also Muskegon went Trump, by less than a point. Oakland County also went more heavily Blue than in '16. A surprise unless you follow the logic of what happened in Kent and in suburbs across the US. The overall picture in Michigan is that turnout was *really* high in Trump counties or else the beating he took there would have been worse.

If I'm understanding the theory correctly, the software provides the answer as to how many fake ballots are necessary (after manipulation like "drop and roll") and then the fake ballots are created to fill in the falsified numbers. Is that what the theory is? Because without fake ballots, the hand counts would reveal the software manipulation, wouldn't it? If that's correct, then it explains why every state where this may have occurred is strenuously resisting ballot signature inspection and a deep audit. I'm not disagreeing with the allegation that there is a lot of very improbable mathematical evidence emerging (like Gwinnet County for example....read Daniel Horowitz's excellent article on this county). I just think that it's really important to be able to explain how this was done if it was, in a way that a judge can understand. In addition, the Trump litigation team needs to be able to explain what happened cogently and with great focus (I totally agree that if there was fraud it was focused in key areas, and not widespread). Moreover, they need to seek a very specific remedy...deep dive audit that includes ballot signature inspection.

Hello Mr. Byrne,

Thank-you so much for this investigation. I'm a retired big data processor of 32 years – Relational database, SAS and SQL with microrsoft access, powerpoint and excel expertise. If I can help in anyway please don't hesitate to reach out. As you've stated any time the system numbers don't match the ballots you've got a smoking gun. By chance does the system data you've accessed have any location information – postmark location? Mail-in ballots should theoretically be processed close to home – my local post office. If large ballot dumps occurred late 11/3 to 11/5 I wonder if they can be isolated to not only a city or town but the local post office as well. I also wonder if there was a process to compare walk-in ballots and pre-processed mail-ins to voter registration information. If so – late 11/3 a quick query may have been run to identify those who DID NOT vote. Assume mail-ins for non-voters were system generated (paper or system) based on walk-in only voter info (late 11/3) since the existing true mail-ins may not have processed. This could account for the excess number of mail-in ballots – theoretically duplicates should exist.

Keep up the fight!

It is hard to assess here exactly what the mechanics is for the manipulation. These are serious charges and the particulars should be set forth as clearly as they can be. One of the videos linked above, and some of Patrick's comments, propose that there are implausible patterns in how large amounts of votes (absentees, once counted) appear in huge lopsided chunks, and then in oddly coupled set patterns (50.05, 49.95, e.g.). Where is that data drawn from? If the source API is feeds, is there information for how Edison obtains and reports the data that could contextualize (or confirm) that there are indeed anomalies? If what is observed is the API, that is coming not first from the reporting precincts, but from Edison. On the days following the election, I followed the AP state wide vote reports from Pennsylvania and Georgia as they came in, sometimes several times an hour as the AP feed was automatically refreshed. The votes would come in batches of anywhere from a few hundred to ten thousand or so. In Pennsylvania, the batches were always between 55% to 80+% Biden. For Georgia, from 50% to 70+% Biden. It was not 100%, 50/50%, or otherwise “dump and roll,” at least in terms of how the votes appeared to be coming in at the time.

Hi Patrick,

I'm also an experienced data analyst. I have a lot of analysis that matches what you're saying however, I keep getting stuck on one issue. How do they get past the printed paper ballots that are created with every vote by the Dominion machine? If the machine votes opposite to what the printed paper ballot says (which matches the voters' selections), don't those differences get picked up during a recount (and potentially by the voters themselves)? Do they just generate votes on the spot along with the accompanying printout when they spike the votes at night for Biden? How do they identify just the Trump votes to throw out (which I assume means they have to throw out the matching paper ballot printouts as well)?

I do know about the rejected ballots scheme (where they set up the machine to reject ballots in Trump counties for bogus reasons so they can be inspected by hand) but that would involve manually rejecting the paper ballots on inspection. What you're talking about and many others have discovered are electronic manipulations of votes. But how can that be done if there is a paper trail?

If a ballot goes to adjudication, a new ballot is printed with what is the voters "intent". That ballot goes in the box. The problem is that it appears mass adjudication was done without both parties present. I watched all the testimony from all the swing states on OAN. I heard pieces from many people that connect the dots. One being hundreds of pristine ballots, no folds all for Biden. I also heard in Detroit a poll worker of 31 years describing a piece of correction tape placed on the tabulator. A single Dominion contractor did this all day on 11 tabulators. What this did was send all the ballots to adjudication but it contained the QR code as the tape didn't cover the entire row. So you have the QR code to match the newly printed ballot that can be matched with the envelop. The newly printed ballots were then tabulated. By law the adjudicated ballots and all images were supposed to be kept for 22 months. A forensic audit could prove all ballots printed by adjudication vs. hand filled out with a pen. Large numbers of printed ballots would prove fraud. Additionally we would see a lot of messed up ballot images. Another testimony told of tabulators stopping because they were "full" of ballots. The memory card was removed and the ballots were transferred to another drive and taken someplace. The card placed back in the tabulator and it was fast again. I also watched the entire 1 hour training video Dominion gave contractors on Nov 2nd 2020. In that video the training person stated there were 20 tabulators in Detroit at the TCF center and 13 adjudication stations. If your only rejecting 1 of 125,000 votes and processing a few thousand military ballots, why do you need 13 adjudication stations. Which nobody was able to see or witness.

After 101m votes counted at 23:26 hrs. (ET) on 3rd November (night of election) – there was a reversal in Trumps fortunes of some 3.8m votes.

He was leading by 3,552,157 votes at 23:00 hrs. but then went into a 308,202 deficit at 23:26 hrs.

Is there a logical explanation for that change?

As other posters responded, the PA numbers of people mailing in voting matches PA State website (not 1 million additional people). I even thought the state website could (would) have reflected the additional people (just to balance), so I went to TargetSmart

Early Voting page and for PA, it does show a daily chart of mail-in submissions that get up to 2.6 million on election day (they were collecting data along the way).

Now, if you want to question the break-out, you show 600k voted for Trump and 2.0 mill for Biden. PA reported the breakdown of who voted as 1.7 mill Dems, 623k Rep and 300k Independents. Is it feasible that Biden got all the Independents?

Be cautious of 1 million vote swing as that kind of fraud cannot be easily covered up. And, if your computer geeks have time, a good chart is the GA change in turnout plot by districts but do it on counties all across America ... if you are right, the 5-6 cities/counties should stick out like a sore thumb. I have heard this before, but no one has shown the data to be verified.

Lastly, the reason for the big spike in Arizona data (at the beginning) is that Arizona allows its BOE to start counting early mail-ins days before. Thus, there is a big dump of those votes right at the beginning as the counting is already done (but cannot be reported till after polls close or its a felony). Others states dump it later as their rules are envelopes cannot be opened till polls close (or that day) – long process. But, for Arizona, this is not an abnormal spike as it was tallied before polls actually closed and then sent out. (Allowed per their rules)

And, most mail-in ballots would (could) favor Dems (as early national pre-polling was showing by 2 to 1 at times — as Trump voters waited to vote in person). The hard part is trying to figure out who actually did as polling was so far off (in Arizona, the final early voting was close to 3/8-3/8-1/4 Dem, Rep and Ind for the state). So, Biden jumping out ahead is a little suspicious there if we knew how the Independents split in those 2 counties (even between Dems and Rep? If so, then it is suspicious that Biden had 12% lead early on when it should have been closer (but not the fraud you talk about — shutting down everything to figure out how much to add in the middle of the night).

Good luck ... some things are very off but other anomalies can be explained. Fix it early before the media locks on to one of two that can be fact checked easily to discredit you.

There is work to be done with the counties that provide voting data by voting type (direct versus party-line). I did some work with Michigan data and the patterns look very odd. For example, across precincts, the % party line vote is higher and more consistent for trump than biden, who has substantially more variability (less consistency in voting style across precincts). The more you dig, you'll find trends in voting style differ substantially for biden (both in average % and variability in voting style) depending on the degree to which the total votes differ between trump vs. biden. However, when you do this for trump voting style stays consistent across precincts regardless of the vote differences between candidates. In other words, it looks like there is some evidence weighting going on (i'm guessing by a combo machine, dumps, and other stuff) that can be picked up because dataset includes voting type... The more trump was winning, the more direct votes for biden – weighting lessens as biden is winning more.

1.  Jacob Smits says:

None of this is 'odd' in a contested election in which independents swing towards the opposition candidate.

That Republicans cannot fathom the idea that independents research their votes and vote for the person they feel best suited to do the job or don't vote for that race at all is quiet telling. Now this is highly anecdotal but I'm a big believer in microcosms, and of the Trump voters I know, every single one of them bragged about a straight party-line vote.

1.  Concerned Stats Guy says:

November 25, 2020 at 12:05 pm

So it makes sense to you that in somewhere like Kent County, MI, if you take precincts of roughly the same size and Biden wins one group of precincts by 15% and loses another group of precincts by 15%, the expected number of direct votes would be about the same in the two precinct groups? That is what I am seeing in the data and it doesn't make sense. In every other condition both direct and party-line votes correlate with the total differences between candidates (e.g., when Biden won bigger, he also got more party-line votes; when Trump won bigger, he got both more direct and party line votes). If you or anyone else has thoughts on this, I'm honestly interested in learning more. I am struggling to understand these patterns in the data.

I think a big problem with trying to discover election fraud by analyzing for anomaly in the data is that you're assuming incorrectly that people vote rationally and in distinct patterns. It's the same problem in economic theory in my opinion: that when studied at scale, people act rationally. Again, anecdotally, I just don't believe that to be true. I believe people, at scale, act more like herds of cattle, and that includes following the herd right off the cliff.

So the 'pattern' of votes here might just be that among friends and families in suburbs like Grand Rapids, Trump lost a lot of voters from 2016. My hunch was always that he only actually won in 2016 because a slight majority of undecided voters who didn't really care for either Hillary or Trump said 'f* it, I'm voting Trump lets see how it goes'. I think those same voters decided they had had enough of the reality TV show presidency but might have kept voting republican elsewhere.

Also what I've noticed in this and similar theories is that they don't seem to be taking into account that in many areas of the country, Republicans and Democrats run unopposed. That would mean that in these races, disaffected voters who want Trump gone and don't much care for the party that has rubber stamped his lunacy would only vote for Biden and not give any of the unopposed republicans on their ballot the benefit of the doubt and abstain from voting in those races. I don't think anyone is really accounting for that in these theorems here.

Seems to me you went into this with a premise, 'the election was stolen', and then looked for any data that appeared to match this premise.

The biggest flaw that I see here is that you're simply discounting the idea that the majority of mail-in ballots were for Biden. I think its pretty reasonable to assume that would be the case given the attitudes towards the pandemic between Biden and Trump voters.

The other huge flaw is that you're using the 'reported votes' data stream. Votes are counted and results batched and then eventually reported. The Occums razor scenario here is that large swaths of mail-in ballots were counted in heavy Biden districts and then batched and reported in a couple of large swaths. Is it really THAT unlikely that as shifts changed, people went home or took breaks in the early hours that batches of mail-in votes were being collated but not reported until a big push when the counting started ramping back up?

1.  Patrick Byrne says:

Sure sure. 600,000 mail-in ballots processed in a batch, 3,200 for Trump, the rest for Biden. Oh, and it was in the three hour window that goons kicked observers out, water-mains break, goons block observers, tape newspaper over windows, and carry in backpacks while gooning any remaining observers.

Nothing to see there, move along....

Thanks for your work, Patrick! I have a question about the claim “Pennsylvania reports having mailed out 1,823,148 ballots, of which 1,462,302 were returned.” I repeated this on FB and was called on the 1,823,148 ballots mailed out number. I looked into it and the best I could find were news articles in October referring to 2.6 million or 2.8 million ballots requested. So I would assume that by election day the total would be close to 3 million requested and something close to that mailed out. In your claim you cite no source, and the number seems to be in error. Could you check this? I know you want to get it right. Thanks again for all your work!

“Seems to me you went into this with a premise, ‘the election was stolen’, and then looked for any data that appeared to match this premise.”

That is exactly how a fraud examination is supposed to go, Fraud Examination 101 instructs you to take a “worse-case scenario” hypothesis before you even start pulling data and then you can revise and amend your hypothesis as the investigation evolves. Starting an investigation requires predication, and an investigator has to always assume the case will end in litigation which is why you will begin with the premise not only that fraud occurred but that the worst possible fraud scenario occurred.

Patrick,

Thank you again for all you are doing.

As others are pointing out, Bev Harris is a very useful person to point out and perhaps to contact. I participated on her Forum before it was destroyed, it had a huge archive of what is going on right now.

“Nothing new, under the sun.”

I think one of the sad parts here is how many may feel this all as new or just having happened. The fact is this has been going on for a very long time. Here is an example of remote access and the fraction magic others are pointing out (note the dates):

<https://blackboxvoting.org/fraction-magic-part-6/>

“In Pima County, Arizona, it was revealed during litigation that a technician was making copies of the GEMS election database and taking it home overnight, then loading it back onto the official computer in the morning.”

“Perhaps the greatest access of all goes to the big boys, the four major vendors for election equipment in the world (ES&S, Dominion, Smartmatic, Hart Intercivic).”

“The following excerpt, taken from the deposition of Shelby County Election technician Dennis Boyce, 23 demonstrates that vendors are sometimes provided with remote desktop access during elections.”

“Well, Mr. Underwood looked at the data and we had a remote session with WebX and he looked at the data and looked around. We told him what happened and we told him that we needed to resolve the issue. And he looked at the data and they did their little deal or whatever they did to correct it and told us to reconfigure the data again. They kind of reset stuff.”

And more, Spain / SCYTL: <https://2012patriot.wordpress.com/2012/05/07/george-soros-counts-presidential-votes/>

Keep in mind, I recall Bev stating this but I can't find her post, I'm just using that article because it confirms my memory of what she said:

“And although the votes will be cast in hometown, American precincts on Election Day, with the Barcelona-based SCYTL taking charge of the process, they will be routed and counted overseas.”

“But although SCYTL's self-proclaimed reputation for security had won the company the Congressionally approved task of handling internet voting for American citizens and members of the military overseas, upon opening the system for use in the District of Columbia, the University of Michigan fight song “The Victors” was suddenly heard after the casting of each ballot. The system had been hacked by U of M computer teachers and students in response to a challenge by SCYTL that anyone who wished to do so, might try!”

So again this has been going on for some time, Bev Harris did fantastic work but never got the traction that seems to finally be happening. If these early researchers were brought on board, and their knowledge shared ago with the very long history, it will be hard for most people to deny and not see the crime that is happening here.

Thank you again for all you are doing!

Charles

The PA mail-in data was scrutinized in this thread where where someone revealed day-by-day ballot counts from a non-public subscription service name targetsmart. It's worth a look.

The thread heats up with the accidentally confused primary results—ouch. Then moves to the 3M listed in the U.S. Elections Project Data github data—suspect for PA only.

Then slows down after the comprehensive data showing 2,383,062 requested ballots in the targetsmart data.

The targetsmart and the U.S. Elections Project Data agree very well except for the final PA figure figures which they source from the secretary of state with no link, unlike the other data which seem to all have links.

That's a bit of a rollercoaster ride, but the result is that 2,383,062 is the most reliable number for the a final vote request count in PA and it would be difficult to make the case that more than 90% made it back in any legitimate way. That of course gives the win to Trump so it's not going to be accepted easily.

Data Analyst says:

November 25, 2020 at 10:54 pm

I think this “smoking gun” is faulty.

Here is an example of what I think the video maker is seeing:

Consider the ratio 5/61 (for example). I didn't count, but I think there are something like 500 precincts in the data. So maybe 8 of the 500 will have a vote count divisible by 61 (500/61 is about 8). And there's not that many options for the “5” count in the heavy Biden districts, so say 2 of the 8 match this also.

This occurs at the start of the data (first big dump). Then the video maker sees the same data reported for a long period, with minimal global changes (IIUC). But at some point there *is* a big dump, and many ratios get changed throughout the dataset. These are essentially a new randomizing factor: so again 1 or 2 precincts might have ratio 5/61 as above. The last timestamp before the big dump, and the first one after it, will then have the “vote ratio transfer” as the video maker claims.

While I would say it is just patterns that you would expect in sufficiently voluminous “random” vote data (where “random” means with respect to the voting distribution, eg 85%+ for Biden in some places, etc).

A way to disprove it all is to consider some other similar state, with their data updates, and see if the same “vote ratio transfer” occurs. I would guess it is nothing more than the expected behavior.

I think the smoking gun here is that anytime you see most spikes, even if they favor one candidate over the other, there is a simultaneous spike that suggests mail in ballots introduced or the like. Where it gets odd, especially in GA or MI is that the spike favors exclusively one candidate. In this case Biden exclusively, and days after the voting has stopped. You expect to see spikes, but spikes that affect both candidates. Keep up the good work. We've got a country to save.

1.  Jihad?No,AMitzvah says:

November 25, 2020 at 11:32 pm

There is no smoking gun here. The graphs introduced by Patrick, without context or analysis, show the mail in ballots in most states favored Biden. What's missing is an objective consideration of the data. Are there narratives that explain the graphs? Yes, there are. Arizona absentee ballots favored Trump, as most likely vulnerable elderly people voted absentee and favored Republican. In Wayne County, Philadelphia and the suburbs, Atlanta and the suburbs, the absentees favored Biden.

There was a time when the conspiracy theories Patrick pursued pushed America to a deeper truth. He had real data to support the contentions, such as failures to deliver clustering to certain companies, OSTK in particular. Eventually, the SEC took action. This stuff is a dead end.

But I have heard even his adversaries from those battles say he is an “American hero” (a description I’d debate, but with securities and block chain he is at least directionally correct) for fighting that fight.

I am at a loss to understand Patrick’s loss of objectivity or perspective here. With the naked short selling stuff, he would present the other side in a fair manner. Thank you Patrick, incredible work! Those graphs of the states that show ballot dumps that go mostly to Biden are explained as obvious fraud (but that is my first time seeing those charts and so like most people I have no “normal” to compare them to); to be clear, I am certain there is fraud just looking for a little more detail to make it more convincing to the general public. So sorry to be the guy with an idea of what you should do because you have already done so much I just don’t know how to do it.

The liberals reply that those large jumps for Biden “are just the absentee ballots being added” with the assumption that Biden got a supermajority of those ballots and so many of the public looking for answers may buy that explanation by the democrats. I think it would be helpful to show how irregular those jumps are. Perhaps it would help if there were charts from other states that show what a normal chart without voter fraud looks like. And the other states could be analyzed so that we could make a statistical statement that proves how irregular those jumps are. Something like this: “in analyzing all other non-voter fraud states no candidate received a jump in ballots of 20:1 (or whatever the ratio is) at anytime except for in NV, MI, WI, PA and GA where voter fraud is suspected.”

Thanks for your insights and efforts to ensure fair elections. Please address this discrepancy in the number of ballots sent out versus those received in Pennsylvania. How does that square with these numbers cited in this article?

Also some people explain that the spikes were just due to uploading of number totals after counting the ballots. How do you respond to this? From the graphs it seems both Trump and Biden had spikes except that Bidens was higher at those 'injection' points. How do you determine the Biden that spikes were fraudulent? I assume you have more evidence than you are sharing here but that needs some clarification. Would appreciate some more detailed explanation of the last three graphs. Thanks.

From your linked article:

“A week ahead of the Nov. 3 election, applications in the presidential battleground state of Pennsylvania for mail-in or absentee ballots exceeded 3 million, with Tuesday the last day to request one and legal wrangling creating uncertainty over the deadline to receive them.

State data shows that, of those applications, about 1.9 million, or more than 62%, have been returned to counties.”

So, a week before Nov. 3, 1.9 million ballot *applications* had been returned. Each such (valid) application would result in a ballot being mailed. And some fraction of those ballots would then be returned for counting. In light of this data, getting 2,589,242 mailed ballots returned seems quite odd.

With respect to the data table that reports PA sent out 1.8 mil ballots; roughly 1.5 mil were returned but Biden captured 2.6 mail-in votes...Is there hard evidence for this claim? Do the election officials certify these numbers? If so, what is their explanation? And given this information why would Biden be certified a winner at all?

Thanks again Patrick and team!

I posted a few days earlier about the possibility of generating ballots for registered 2016/20 non 2016 voters for either party. This would seem to be the cleanest way to cheat. A candidate wins a states electoral vote by popular vote – not by counties won. Suppose the following – Hillary Clinton lost a state by 30,000 votes in 2016 and Biden won by 10,000 in 2020. That’s a difference of 40,000 votes. Suppose this state has 30 counties and 100,000 registered 2016/20 but non-voters in 2016 and all 100,000 registered 2016/20 but non-voters in 2016 had fraudulent mail-in ballots generated for 2020. On average the 40,000 vote difference between loss in 2016 and win in 2020 averages 1333 per county for Biden. All 40,000 could have come from one large county or could have been spread over all 30 depending on the number of registered 2016/20 non-voters per county from 2016. It could be that Trumps numbers in each county mirrored or increased in 2020 vs 2016. Trump could have actually won 29 of these counties in 2020. But if he loses one and the one loss offsets his gains in the other 29 combined he loses the state. The smaller the margin of victory for Trump in each of the 29 counties means a smaller dump necessary in the one Biden county of victory. IF 1000 fraudulent mail-ins were released for 29 counties then 11,000 would have to be released in Biden’s one large (population) county of victory. Spreading the fraud around would seem to be a smart strategy – harder to detect. Now big question number 1 – what if some of the 40,000 registered 2016/20 non-voters in 2016 actually voted in 2020 either walk-in or mail-in. Well duplicates once processed could be mechanically thrown out – in reality I suppose both should be thrown out – the first and the duplicate but if there’s fraud involved the software probably retains one Biden vote. In addition suppose per late 11/3 results Biden was losing – well there just happens to be another 60,000 fraudulent mail-ins ready to be released in one final dump. Big question number 2 – I imagine but do not know t there are machines that can mechanically generate a matching signature based on a sample. So given access to voter registration signatures each of the fraudulent mail-in ballots could be signed with an almost exact registration match signature – this cannot be assumed – signatures must be verified, in fact exact matches could be questioned . Big question 3 – what type of stock and format was used on the fraudulent ballots – this could be a smoking gun – if mail-ins do not match the official stock and format of official mail-ins they must be thrown out. However, if the stock, format and signature match I’m at a loss – the actual VOTER would have to be contacted and willing to testify yes I voted or no I did not. Finally – Big question 4 – does each mail-in have a postmarked envelope 11/3 or earlier – if pre-prepared as stated earlier I imagine they have envelopes but do they have valid postmarks of 11/3 or earlier? This is why all mail-ins without an envelope or postmarked after 11/3 or no postmark at all must be thrown out. In addition postmarks must be validated – I believe the post office has record files of received mailing with process dates separate from the postmark itself – if so this must be verified for any mail-in envelope with postmark of 11/3.

Thank-you!

When this smoke clears and there is time for you and fellow Patriots to look into the full scope of the fraud in all 50 states, I hope that there is an opportunity to look at North Carolina in detail. While Trump nominally won the state, I do not believe his margin of victory (it should have been WAY higher), but, as importantly, I really do not believe the margins for the Governor, US Senator, Attorney General and perhaps several races for the Congress and the General Assembly from both parties. This looks and smells like a seriously rigged election but one done with a strategic eye to not arouse too much suspicion or a forensic audit, which is necessary in my view. NC also uses ES&S machines for vote tabulation. All help is appreciated more than you can ever know!

Your graphic about Pennsylvania's official vote count is fraudulent. And I'm a PA resident who voted for Pres. Trump.

The vote counts shown in the table are correct for the 2020 General Election. The statement in the caption "Pennsylvania reported having mailed out 1,823,148 ballots, of which 1,462,302 were returned" is correct, but it refers to the 2020 *Primary* Election. You can confirm (as I have) that the numbers 1,823,148 and 1,462,302 are correct for the 2020 *Primary* Election dataset, which is available at <https://data.pa.gov/Government-Efficiency-Citizen-Engagement/2020-Primary-Election-Mail-Ballot-Requests-Departm/853w-ecfz>

For all. Brave.com is a super fast and very secure browser that does not send data to google, AWS and the like. You can choose weather you want adds on your pages or not and if you do choose to see add YOU are paid a good portion of the add revenue. You can transfer and exchange your payment for US $, as I have done once or twice, or you can support web sites, twitter users by "Tipping" a portion of your monthly earnings.

Patrick has done much more than just fight for our elections. He started <https://www.medicventures.com> and put together a group of Block Chain companies that could transform our government and financial functions almost over night. He also backed an idea by Bruce Fenton for an open source Block Chain that any one can use to build a business, service or any number of other things. Ravencoin.org has an outstanding set of functions and features that allow for millions of use cases. You can find a partial list of some of the businesses taking advantage https://raven.wiki/w/Ravencoin Wiki

“Could not verify” is an interesting way to say that it was complete horseshit. You in fact are able to verify that it was 100% wrong information that you happily spread around and are now backing off in the meekest possible way.

If the fraud was so obvious why is so much of the “proof” from you and people like Sydney Powell an outright lie?

* Lying about the number of registered voters in PA

* Lying that the Georgia state certification of the Dominion equipment wasn't dated when in fact is that it was but the date was cropped out for the lawsuit?

* The Michigan suit claims there was fraud in Edison County Michigan, which literally doesn't exist

I don't expect you to answer this because you are obviously a fraud and you have found a large enough following of complete rubes to believe any of the trash you put up. This is a response to the comment above since I couldn't respond to that one. Don't you find it odd that you can't answer any of my questions even though they are very simple, instead you resort to name calling? Not that I really care what Michael Flynn has to say since he is an admitted liar, but what treason have I committed by pointing out that Sydney Powell is at best an extremely sloppy lawyer?

1.  Deadheded says:

December 2, 2020 at 7:05 pm

That was not Lt. General Flynn it was 3 STAR General Thomas McInerney saying whoever is trying to hide this is committing treason.

The 3 things you listed as reasons for saying all this is BS are the weakest arguments you could make. Anyone with a simple knowledge of data could see all the issues.

How about defending the vote spikes very evident in the raw data?

How about defending 3200 Trump votes out of 570K?

How about defending the packets transferring between Dominion machines and foreign servers?

This list could go on and on....

I didn't vote for Trump and think he should be in prison along with the Bidens, Clintons, Bushes, Obamas and anyone who help commit this treason.

BTW this story was first reported back in 2015, where the hell have you been?

“Dennis Montgomery, the CIA / DoD contractor-turned-whistleblower who designed and built THE HAMMER foreign surveillance system and its exploit known as SCORECARD, provided sworn testimony to the FBI and the DOJ in 2015 about THE HAMMER, SCORECARD, and SCORECARD's capability to hack into election systems from Dominion, Smartmatic, and other .”

No matter what the outcome- we are left looking at an evil monster that dropped its pants. rather than talk about trump, we need to talk about America 2050. Folks America has failed. When Tyranny wins and people sleep, we are already lost. The question is are we going to just go along with this globalist takeover, or can we stand up and take this country back. I would rather unplug my computer, and live outdoors free, then live in a

Also, to all: we don't have a large burden of proof. The graphs are enough preponderance the average person would agree this election stinks. We don't have to prove beyond a

Hi, Patrick. I just watched your interview with Dr. Dave on Operation Freedom regarding Dominion/Smartmatic election systems and election fraud. I live in Montgomery County, NW of Philadelphia. I understand there was rampant fraud in my county as well, although I didn't witness any voter intimidation. By the way, I was handed a Sharpie, which troubled me, but the scanner accepted my ballot...or so it said. I wonder now if my vote was redeployed as I did not vote for Biden.

I've been following a few data guys on public Twitter regarding all things coronavirus. Some identify themselves and some have avatars (I gather they want to keep their jobs and their families safe).

One in particular, @gummibear737 has been following the absentee ballot data in Pennsylvania. I don't know his qualifications or background.

Would really appreciate it if you would look over his data. While it's not hard data (like Matt Braynard's work for Project Amistad), it certainly suggests fraud on a massive scale.

Mr. Patrick Byrne,

You simply need to set up a secure Web site for each battle ground state where people who voted for Trump can submit an affidavit that they voted for Trump. The count will tell the true story.

Of course you would need a scheme to avoid jerks who would flood the site with false affidavits.

It is rumored that China forged votes, videos and dialogues flow out
As the US election was affected by the epidemic, more than 120 million blank ballots were mailed in advance. According to a source, an underground factory in Guangdong, China, which usually specializes in “forging invoices and falsifying accounts,” has forged a large number of blank U.S. ballots since July with a monthly output of 500,000.

Judging from the screenshots of the conversation, the boss not only said, ” We have the original version of this version, “We have ordered it before . ” There is still a lot of this in inventory. And because the ballots are different in each state in the United States, the underground factory can provide the original model files of “Mississippi, Florida, North Carolina”, and emphasize that this is provided by the “previous customer”, and there are other states that can also be used for voting , Not only these 3 states.

It is worth noting that the boss of the underground factory actually stated that the metal patterns and anti-counterfeiting of the real ballots cannot be forged yet, but previously unknown people have ordered a large number of them, and the boss also said, “The amount is not a problem, the main thing is your money. In place, that amount is not a problem.”

<https://www.cmmedia.com.tw/home/articles/24456>

Regarding the fact that China forged a large number of blank ballots in this U.S. election, after a citizen journalist’s introduction, the third generation of the CCP Red, named Yi Qiwei, confirmed that this happened, and pointed out that a large number of fake driver’s licenses and fakes from China were seized throughout the United States this year. The certificate is also related to this incident. Yi Qiwei quoted a report from “Voice of America” and pointed out that as of August 10, US law enforcement authorities had intercepted 54,718 fake identity documents.

I am in cyber security and greatly appreciate what you have done and the data you shared. What I am still trying to piece together is the actual forensic connection between the setup described in affidavit from the Kraken and the footprint of the bad actors. I apologize if I missed it.

But you clearly show how someone (foreign bad actors) could manipulate the election (the voting spikes) but is there actual audit log information showing who did it? What credentials were used? Can the sequence of actions be shown definitively between the how and who?

I have no doubt this happened. Just looking for the irrefutable evidence. I am afraid a judge would say this is all very damning but it doesn't actually show someone did it...it only shows they could.

Sorry I can't see in the hundreds of comments if the below issues were already addressed, but these are my comments on this paper:

1/ Re "[i] By way of example", 2nd bullet:

First, It's unclear what servers are being referenced in this comment. Are you referring to a "summation server" that all tabulation servers report into? The article seems to imply you are talking about tabulation servers. To me, it seems like physical servers would be far easier for local precinct folks to set up and tear down. Regardless, nobody has said anything much about system architecture or implementation (especially state-by-state). QSnatch would only apply to virtual servers running on the vulnerable storage system. Who knows what storage system any state's servers were running on?

2/ Re: same bullet point:

The reference to audit trail is a completely separate issue which refers largely to lack of a secure system architecture. There should be a Risk Management Plan, a set of ISSP's in accordance with NIST guidance, and secure baseline's for all devices.

The tabulation servers should be locked down in accordance with designated STIGS, including establishment of event log levels and forwarding of all events back to the organization's (state.gov) central event logging system. Audit logging is just one security element of hundreds.

As another example of VERY BAD security implementation, Bowen Xiao reported that GA servers were reportedly configured to permit split tunneling via a wireless card. If true this is absolutely rock bottom poor security.

I suspect, based on what little we know, that a review voting machine IT policy, process and procedure, and device baselines would reveal *hundreds* of security defects.

To me, this pits the lie to what the idiot Krebs said about election security. To real security professional would make the claim that dope made.

Re: [ii] (NYT reporting)

Supply chain risk is among the most difficult IT risks to manage. This risk is usually mitigated through extensive V&V testing which is thoroughly documented and submitted to records management. This risk was largely accepted when the system was procured and this paper is over dramatizing it relative to risks created by lack of a secure overall implementation. This in turn diminishes the impact of your report. A simple statement that V&V testing was not just inadequate but incompetent left the states open to realizing the risk. Again, though, this is just a prt of secure operation of an IT system.

I think you have three issues:

- 1/ System design issues noted at the very top.
- 2/ Very very very bad over system security, which in mind rises to the level of complete incompetence to run a secure IT system.
- 3/ Statistical evidence fraud occurred.

Apologies for all the grammar/spelling issue. All thumbs on the phone here...

One correction. I should have said virtual servers running on a virtual machine atop the storage system. I'm not familiar with the storage system and/or VM mentioned and it was unclear to me what exactly was vulnerable to Qsnatch. The VM seems more likely than the underlying storage system. This should be clarified. Sorry for any confusion on that point.

“Trump Blasts Durham for Not Finishing Probe Before Election”

Electoral disasters plus totally inadequate “investigations” by the federal govt entities..... Just another reminder that Q/Qanon was 3+ years of preposterous bull droppings. Despite the “Q” claims that “we have it all” and “enjoy the show” etc. in the end NOTHING was done to protect the Trump presidency, electoral integrity, and Trump's re-election.

The Q/Qanon stuff is just a sideshow but it consumed tons of time and energy from conservatives who should have had much better things to do.

I remember well how “Q” boasted that “Trump surrounds himself with Generals” because that was supposed to indicate that the Trump admin. was some kind of elaborate 12-D military intel operation to save America. Well of course, as we know, Mattis-Kelly-McMaster were all great anti-Trump disasters.... while General Mike Flynn despite his good intentions was back-stabbed right out of the administration and into a 4-year legal catastrophe that had to be ended by a pardon.

So much for the efficacy of “Q” and “Trump's Generals” and every other piece of b.s. spread by the moronic “Qanon” crowd for the past 3+ years. Anyone who still takes “Q” seriously is an utter moron. Well that was evident 3+ years ago....

“Trump Blasts Durham for Not Finishing Probe Before Election”

“...Trump lamented that findings from Durham’s investigation into potential FBI malfeasance in its probe of Russian meddling in the 2016 political cycle didn’t surface before the most recent election last month, effectively altering the course of the race.”

““We caught them all,” Trump said from the White House Diplomatic Room. “We’re still waiting for a report from a man named Durham who I’ve never spoken to and never met. They can go after me before the election as much as they want, but unfortunately Mr. Durham didn’t want to go after these people . . . before the election, so who knows if he’ll ever even do a report.””

Hi Patrick,

I just read some posts Bev Harris tweeted and they got me thinking.

I would like to draw your attention to the following:

<https://informeddelivery.usps.com/box/pages/intro/start.action>

For some time now the USPS photographs ALL mail pieces, and now uses that ability to send you photos of the mail you are to receive the next day. Proven in the link above, the link proves the image archive.

Fortunately I had not yet emptied my office garbage and found my unopened mail ballot (I voted in person). Interestingly, there is “*****-01E” on the ballot (and ballot has that as a 2D barcode) and on the outside of the mail piece. I know ***** is an ID associated with my city. However I am not clear on the last 3 characters. It would be great to see a neighbors mail piece to compare, but unlikely to happen. Using letters and numbers gives a total of 46656 possible combinations (enough for all voters in my city) and thus could be my unique ID, dunno. But if it is, then the post office photo would contain everything needed to match my ballot to my name and physical address as that sequence is also on the outside of the mailer.

Which always begs the question, who has access to all those photos?

There are many other dot matrix printed “notations” on the outside of the mail piece as well. Not clear what they are.

The above “service” of the USPS came to my attention via a story of thieves using it. Basically the post office does not check the service requests so anybody can sign up for anybody else’s address. Then they watch the emails for something of value and then go steal it ...

It would be interesting to harvest ALL USPS ballot photos and see what one finds .... The USPS clearly has a database of ALL OF THEM .... The Gov watches us with it, only seems fitting that in this case we use it to take a look at them. On my mail piece there is a huge obviously unique barcode for me that would allow this database to be processed automatically.

The markings on my Ballot mail piece are sufficient to match the mail coming to me, and my mailing it back. The address label “to” me appears on the back side of the return envelope. This then provides even more information, such as were ballots returned and the voter still allowed to vote in person (match to polling location)?

Charles

Thank you for proving no fraud. Blue mirage in the states that were able to count mail-in and absentee ballots early(your example Arizona 14 days prior to election day), and red mirage in the states where mail-in and absentee ballot could not be counted until election day(Michigan, Wisconsin, Pennsylvania, Georgia...). This is exactly what was expected to happen, and the response is true to form as well.

Now, take Arizona and assume they weren't able to count early votes until Election Day. It would look like the other charts you have. Or, do it the other way. Assume Wisconsin or Pennsylvania was able to count early votes before Election Day. They would look like the Arizona

All that the charts show is when the early vote tabulations were entered into the system, predictable and verifiable.

In fact, I'm wrong; you did prove fraud on the Republican side. Republican led State Congresses in Wisconsin and Pennsylvania for example would not allow election officials to count early voting until the day of the election, giving Trump the appearance he wanted to further his election fraud agenda.

Wouldn't you think PRESIDENT Trump, with the whole of the government (FBI, DOJ, and other agencies) at his disposal would have uncovered actual election fraud plots before Election Day? All Trump was and is doing is using NAZI propaganda tactics with his base, and it is sad that so many people have bought it. I'll share a quote "If you tell a lie big enough and keep repeating it, people will eventually come to believe it." This is known as the Illusory Truth Effect. Who is the quote from? Joseph Goebbels, minister of propaganda for the Nazis. Trump has told the same "fraud" lies over and over and over again, so people now believe it to be true no matter what comes out to show otherwise.

Open your minds to the actual truth. CISA, FBI, DOJ and others have ALL said it. This was a secure election with no wide spread fraud.

STATEMENT FROM DOMINION ON SIDNEY POWELL'S CHARGES

While Dominion Voting Systems is not named as a defendant, on Wednesday, November 25, 2020, Sidney Powell released what appears to be a very rough draft of a lawsuit against the Republican governor and secretary of state of Georgia alleging a bizarre election fraud conspiracy that—were it possible—would necessarily require the collaboration of thousands of participants, including state officeholders, bipartisan local elections officials, thousands of volunteer Election Day poll watchers in thousands of locations across the state of Georgia, federal and state government technology testing agencies, private elections service companies, and independent third-party auditors. This quite simply did not occur.

Dominion Voting Systems is the gold standard for transparent and accountable voting equipment. The allegations included in the draft complaint are baseless, senseless, physically impossible, and unsupported by any evidence whatsoever. We stand with the state and local elected officials and bipartisan election volunteers that this suit maliciously maligns.

In Powell's error-filled document, she repeats a number of baseless allegations about Dominion Voting Systems, which she has made in public since Election Day.

The allegations about DVS most relevant to the election outcome in Georgia are that votes tallied on a Dominion vote tabulator were somehow manipulated on a statewide basis to elevate the count in favor of the Democratic presidential candidate. It is important to understand that this is not possible—not on a machine-by-machine basis, not by alleged hacking, not by manipulating software, and not by imagined ways of “sending” votes to overseas locations. But even if it were possible, it would have been discovered in the statewide handcount of votes.

Dominion’s systems are secure as certified by the U.S. Election Assistance Commission (EAC). In fact, all voting systems must provide assurance that they work accurately and reliably as intended under federal U.S. EAC and state certification and testing requirements. Further, Dominion source code is verified and secure. Third-party test labs chosen by the bipartisan U.S. EAC and accredited by the National Institute of Standards and Technology (NIST) perform complete source code reviews on every tabulation system that is federally certified in the U.S.

Every vote from a Dominion device in Georgia is documented on an auditable paper trail and creates a verifiable paper ballot available for hand-counting. In fact, the Georgia handcounts, independent audits, and machine tests have all repeatedly affirmed that the machine counts were accurate.

In addition, Powell makes a number of allegations that go beyond Dominion’s role in Georgia’s elections—which is only to provide the ballot tabulation systems. For the record, again, Dominion does not develop voter-registration systems, poll-books, signature verification software, or provide vote-by-mail printing. These parts of the voting process are instead supported by other companies and controlled by the state and local officials who run elections in hundreds of thousands of voting places across the country.

These assertions in the Powell filing are non-sensical and unsupported by any presentation of evidence. However, to respond to some of her specific assertions about Dominion:

Dominion was not “founded by oligarchs and dictators.” It was founded in Toronto, Canada, and it is now a proud nonpartisan American company. Dominion has attested to its ownership—under penalty of perjury—to local, state, and federal agencies, including the Committee on Foreign Investment in the United States, which includes all U.S. national security agencies.

Dominion is not, and never has been, owned by Smartmatic. Neither has Smartmatic ever been a subsidiary of Dominion, as the complaint asserts. Dominion is an entirely separate company—they do not collaborate in any way and have no affiliate relationships or financial ties. Dominion does not use Smartmatic. These are all facts verifiable in the public record as well as in regulatory and legal filings.

Dominion has no ties to the Venezuelan government, nor any other foreign government, including China and Iran. Dominion has never participated in any elections in Venezuela and has no connection or relationship with the now deceased former Venezuelan dictator Hugo Chavez. Other companies have serviced elections in Venezuela, but Dominion is not one of them.

Dominion does not have operations in Germany including an “Office of the General Counsel.”

Dominion Voting Systems are in fact auditable—and are audited and tested regularly by multiple government agencies and independent third parties. All electronic devices used in the U.S. must be designed to be audited.

Dominion’s system does in fact include a paper ballot backup to verify results. In fact, thousands of elections officials in Georgia just completed the largest vote recount in American history using the paper ballots produced by Dominion devices.

Dominion’s system cannot be manipulated by a technician in the way Powell alleges. This has been confirmed by the government agencies that have certified Dominion equipment.

Despite repeated counts and audits, there is no evidence of any kind that any voting system deleted, lost, or changed votes in Georgia, or in any of the other 28 states that use Dominion devices. Certifications and audits have instead shown the accuracy, transparency, and reliability of Dominion’s systems.

The federal government agency that oversees U.S. election security verified that there is no evidence that this election was in any way compromised. In fact, they have called it the most secure election in American history.

Servers that run Dominion software are located in local election offices, and data never leaves the control of local election officials.

There were no “glitches” with Dominion’s voting systems, and no unauthorized or last-minute software updates occurred.

There were no “data breaches” of Dominion software by anyone, let alone rogue foreign actors.

Human errors did occur in some counties but were resolved quickly by county officials before the canvass process.

Votes are not processed outside the United States. Votes are counted and reported by county and state election officials—not by Dominion, or any other election technology company.

Election safeguards—from testing and certification of voting systems to canvassing and auditing—prevent malicious actors from tampering with results.

Sidney Powell’s wild and reckless allegations are not only demonstrably false, they have led to stalking, harassment, and death threats to Dominion employees. This criminal activity has been duly reported to the appropriate law enforcement agencies, and we intend to hold Ms. Powell, and those aiding and abetting her fraudulent actions, accountable for any harm that may occur as a result.

Tom Hanks
Brad Pitt

And your co-star should be Margot Robbie

One of these State actors was involved: Russia, China or Iran. I think that the DNC may not be behind this. I just watched the 2020 documentary, "Kill Chain: The Cyber War on America's Elections". It came out in March this year. The last 30 minutes is scary as hell. We were warned. This may be why AG Barr, the media, our top cyber officials, etc want to kill this story. Our national election may have been hacked by a foreign entity.

Regarding the ORDER GRANTING EMERGENCY INJUNCTIVE RELIEF court filing; it is shown to have been filed by La Crosse County Republican Party Chair Bill Feehan and former 3rd District Congressional candidate Derrick Van Orden, who is also a former Navy SEAL. To be clear and for the record, Mr. Van Orden is on public record stating his name was used without his permission and he is not involved in the lawsuit. It was filed by Sidney Powell using his name. Not sure about Feehan.

That said, I would hope especially given Mr. Van Orden's background as a SEAL, that he would be extremely interested in overturning a fraudulent election, whether or not he's involved in that particular lawsuit.

My generation's silence has made us unwitting partners, in a scheme that 's destroying the future for 10s of millions of our kids, grands, and greats. It all began with the 1983 Social Security reform legislation that said "we've saved Social Security for the next 75 years". That set deceit and deception into motion that's allowed the "GOONS" to steal $2.8 trillion of the people's retirement dollars. Replace stolen dollars with a government issued Special Obligation Bond (SOB) that they list as an asset on the Social Security trust fund balance sheet. I've read this information, the Sydney Powell briefs, the court briefings and responses, and I just don't see any information that can be used as evidence this election is rigged. Like the vote count information. Yes, there are spikes as the vote goes one direction and then the next, but aren't those pretty necessary for a vote count that moves from one direction to another? This seems like some sort of expert witness BS where "it can't swing that fast" so something nefarious had to happen. We knew going in Trump wanted everyone to vote in person and the Dems tried to get everyone to vote in advance, preferably not in person (social distancing). So big swings are inevitable. If there was proof of over-voting, it would be a different story, but all of that has been demonstrated as incorrect (wrong precinct, wrong numbers being compared, etc.). At least none of this strikes of most of the noise on this topic which amounts to amateurs complaining because they do not know how elections work. But there still is not any bite in this information so far.

Great work! I am sorry the media and the law is unwillingly to recognize the work you have done. This is glaringly obvious as both a researcher and a statistician. In a normal court of law, this would be enough evidence to order an immediate forensic audit, yet our legislature and state officials have neglected their constituents, neglected the law and worst of all, neglected the constitution. It is their duty to do what is right, but corruption is deep at the highest and lowest levels. Thank you again, please keep it up and please don't give up. This may result in a revolution, taxation without representation. No one is representing their people. NOT ONE to spite your forensic work.

Wie Sie inzwischen wissen, startete das DoD eine Razzia auf eine von der CIA betriebene Serverfarm in Frankfurt, um Server zu sichern, die Beweise für die Einmischung der CIA in die Wahlen von 2020 enthalten (d.h. Hinterturmanipulationen von Wahlergebnissen Ober Dominion Wahlmaschinen). Jetzt tauchen jedoch neue Informationen auf, die darauf hinweisen, dass es in der Serverfarm-Einrichtung ein Feuergefecht gab, in das Einheiten der US-Armee-Spezialeinheiten verwickelt waren, die mit von der CIA ausgebildeten paramilitarischen Einheiten in Konflikt standen, die aus Afghanistan eingeflogen wurden, um die Einrichtung zu verteidigen.

Ein CIA-Offizier wurde bei dem Feuergefecht getötet und wird nun in den Medien als "in Somalia getötet" gemeldet. Fünf Soldaten der US-Armee wurden ebenfalls getötet, und es wird erklärt, dass sie bei einem "Hubschrauberabsturz" in Ägypten ums Leben kamen.

Trotz der Todesfälle wurden die Server erfolgreich vom Verteidigungsministerium sichergestellt, und diese Server wurden der privaten Geheimdienstgruppe von Präsident Trump übergeben, die jetzt wieder von General Michael Flynn geleitet wird, der vor kurzem begnadigt wurde und nun streng geheime Informationen verarbeiten darf, da seine Sicherheitsfreigabe wiederhergestellt wurde.

As you know by now, the DoD started one Raid on a CIA-operated server farm in Frankfurt to secure the evidence for the server CIA interference included in 2020 elections (i.e. backdoor manipulation of election results Upper Dominion voting machines). Now diving, however new information indicating it There was a gun battle at the server farm facility in the units of the US Army Special Forces those involved with being trained by the CIA paramilitary units that conflicted from Afghanistan were flown in to the facility too defend. Great work Patrick, i have seen a couple of your interviews. But your interview last night with Redpill78 & M3 was mind blowing especially the part where you said that evidence collected is a week or two ahead of what has actually been released to the public via patriot media outlets or seen as evidence. Funny how the US Hispanic population understands the dangers of Communism, many having felt the direct implications in the past. You looked tired towards the end interview and i don't doubt that you are burning the candle at both ends trying to get this information to the people, so as to keep the Republic and it's Constitution alive. You will be remembered as an International Hero and Patriot. Unfortunately there isn't time for you to rest yet, but soon and it will be well deserved, know that many support your great efforts.

I am a Kiwi living in Australia both run by Marxists or caught in a Blackmail trap. I only wish that the two countries that are closest to my heart would wake up a little faster from their slumber. My friends would say my tinfoil hat has been on since the 9/11 was the dog event. I certainly believe if the US falls the World is lost to the Communists. Dell Bigtree (The Highwire Bitchute) did a CO2 breathing test on his 11 year old son using multiple masks/bandanas which clearly show a lack of oxygen getting in to the body which are clearly well outside the OHS, Occupational Health and Safety guidelines. The two dumbest arguments i have heard are from people wearing masks complaining that people not wearing them endanger them. The same as the mRNA vaccine. If you get vaccinated then you've done this because you believe it's going to protect you from Cov/sars 2 otherwise you would not take it. The logical argument is from the minute we arrive here we get closer to death every day, so if i don't fear death which is inevitable, and you are protected why do i need to have the jab. Sorry to ramble off topic. I am looking forward to reading your other Exposés. Love from Downunder

A major leak containing a register with the details of nearly two million CCP members has occurred – exposing members who are now working all over the world, while also lifting the lid on how the party operates under Xi Jinping, says Sharri Markson.

Ms Markson said the leak is a register with the details of Communist Party members, including their names, party position, birthday, national ID number and ethnicity.

Hi Patrick,

Question about the SolarWinds / Dominion screen capture.

Archive.org picked up that page but shows something different in its history. If it is OK to ask, about when was your page/screen capture taken?

I'm curious if the page is IP/Location sensitive, or when it changed.

At this point I trust you. My motive is more about Archive.org, as I'm never sure how much trust to place in its history and what tampering with it might occur. Just because it says "archive" does not make it so.

Thank you,

Charles

In regards to the spikes in the graph due to batch loads, Were you able to have the Scanned database queried giving the time these batches were injected and have the data/ballots examined for missing information / fake/blank ballots/ illegal registration etc. This would be Actual data and evidence for the court.

Anyone with an ounce of sense knows this was totally fraudulent. My question is where do we go? It seems no one that could do something about it is interested in hearing about it.

I do hope that January 6th is our reprieve. If some good people in the Senate and congress stand up there may still be hope. But if Biden is ultimately installed, I see no reason for any American to support anything that our government does.

It is important to stay fact based otherwise your work will be susceptible to being labeled that of crazy conspiracy stuff.

The voting irregularities are odd but potentially explainable. For example, there's never been a president as hated as Pres Trump. The media has been working as propagandists for 4 years. Mail in balloting is a new phenomena. So mathematical models may not have the power they normally would this time around.

On the other hand, the one thing that defies logic is how anyone can win 80-99% of super large vote dumps (it is HIGHLY suspicious that it happened in multiple locations and after hours but again, stay fact based). I like the explanation that the software allows supervisors to adjudicate contested votes to a single candidate. This is the 1st real explanation I've ever seen. But the next step...how do you prove that's what happened?

P.s. if any readers still take the "Q" nonsense seriously, events of recent days and weeks are More decisive evidence that "Q" and "Q team" are absolute b.s., and MAGA supporters who followed Q have been played as suckers....

If any of the main lines of the "Q" story were true there is zero chance we would be in this predicament on December 21, 2020. Q was always garbage fan fiction for morons.

No grand secret plan, no "we have it all".... zero comprehensive "military intel" involvement from the beginning..... no masters of the universe in control of how to save the Trump presidency..... no sure plan about what to do now.... Q is garbage. I hate that so many MAGA people were led astray by that Q stuff. Some will say this is a reflection upon Trump and MAGA people as a whole.... but I say the Q phenomenon is mainly an indication of the strong yearning among patriots to see our country saved from truly evil people.... alas, fictionalizing the struggle was never the right way to go.

I know I speak for many when I say that for all intents and purposes it appears as if our hands are tied as the corruption is so deeply ingrained into our government. When our President cannot even trust his advisers, it is indeed a sad state of affairs and shows a direct correlation to the lengths that they will go to achieve whatever they desire as an end result.

So I ask, what, if anything, can be done? And what, if anything, can we, the people who are the victims in this, do to help?

Patrick, sorry to rain on your parade, but this proves nothing.

Why can't people see that after four years of craziness, criminality, and stupidity, the majority of Americans came to the conclusion that Trump was unfit for office and in over his head. His performance motivated a majority of voting Americans to vote him out. And, the spurts in voting totals that so many seem to think is somehow fraudulent, is just a normal manifestation of the counting of ballots....in-person vote totals and mail-in ballots were tallied at different times. And, oh yes, there was that other elephant in the room: Trump's response to the coronavirus pandemic. We have 20 percent of the infections and deaths, but only 4 percent of the population....and every thing about Trump's instincts and response has been proven to be dead-wrong. Remember the "American Resurrection last Easter? How about the bleach/lysol matter. Trump punted on the one "real" crisis he faced. The other crises were those he invented such as the caravan, border wall, etc etc....

Bottom line — the American people have had enough and more than a majority voted against Trump — and the adults still left in American Govt (Barr, Pompeo, etc) have likewise concluded that there was no systemic fraud. May the ghost of Hugo Chavez rest peacefully.

Dr Byrne,

For the sake of full disclosure, please disclose if you have any ownership in Voatz, Votem, or Medici Venture? If you are questioning the validity of the election, while companies that you have an ownership in are using potential voter fraud as a business case as to why a state, municipality, etc should purchase their blockchain solution, I think it would be important for people to know. Maybe these blockchain voting solutions are the answer, but I think it is only fair for readers to know if there could be any ulterior motives for publicly expressing your voter fraud theories.

1.  Deadheded says:

December 24, 2020 at 8:01 am

He has addressed this many times in the past. He has NO ownership in Overstock, Medici Ventures or any of the companies that Medici has financial interest in. He publicly announced his sale of ALL his stock. He does have a great belief that the companies that he gathered together under Medici while he was Overstock CEO would be great for our country and the world on many many levels. He still supports, at least verbally, all of these ventures and expresses immense confidence in JJ.

As far as I have been able to ascertain, his only financial interest in anything connected to Overstock/Medici is in a purchase, after divesting himself from OSTK, of Ravencoin. Ravencoin is a project supported both developmentally and financially by Medici. BUT Medici has NO ownership in the Ravencoin project and does not directly control the path of the project. Ravencoin was founded like Bitcoin with no owners or centralized control of any kind. I can also tell you that Patrick is over 50% down on his Ravencoin investment at this time. I am quite sure that he has made up that with the rise of BTC.

I will also note your pathetic attempt to ANONYMOUSLY misdirect and discredit on this subject is quite telling. Your ignorance of publicly available data and the SPIN you put on the misinformation you put in your post shows that you are attempting to subvert the investigation of constitutional violations.

Who are you? What are you hiding? What are your anterior motives?

Lastly thank you for giving me this opportunity to get some news out about Ravencoin. 20 years from now this may prove to be PB's biggest contribution to our freedom, bigger than what he did concerning Wall St. and bigger than the election. Imagine an economy where the rules are the same for everyone, big or small, and the government can not manipulate or take your livelihood. An economy that allows everyone to reach a world wide market directly WITHOUT Amazon, Itunes, Spodify, Netflix, Youtube, Twitter, Ihart ect..... in the middle. An economy where anyone can take direct payment instantly without a Credit Card company or Bank or other "payment gateway" taking a percentage and holding YOUR earnings for you. Can you visualize a stock market that is easy to understand with no places for manipulation or fraud. Instead of large companies making $100's of billions off or your advertisement viewing and making $100 of billions more selling your data, data that YOU own, you decide what and when and how your PROPERTY is handled. When I see an advertisement in my web browser I get paid.

All these things are possible now, today. The tools are there already being used. But more support is needed. More companies and individuals need to be using these tools to build their business.

I have been struggling trying to figure out how they got all the people in each of the six counties to make this happen. That is a lot of corrupt people.

After watching this excellent report on the Chinese connections in San Fran and Feinstein I found a piece of it. This report documents the direct connections and funding between CCP, BLM and AFL/CIO. There is a ton of important information in this and all Americans should know these things. <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=1S9YjP5Tfxw>

But there is still more. The AFL/CIO provides a lot of infrastructure and BLM provides a lot of malleable emotional new people. After watching this explosive press conference from Ukraine I put it together. After all the Biden stuff they go into the plan for “fixing” the corruption in the Ukrainian “AG” <https://youtu.be/PcOYsmjhTGE?t=2860> This is really telling and EVERYONE should watch this part. There is a lot to unpack but you could, and “they” did, use this exact system to generate the kind of workers “they” needed in each county to pull off the fraud. I wonder what data the Unions have on their member???

Hard Right news networks forced to broadcast retractions of their false/unsubstantiated claims of fraud. I hope that you can further substantiate your claims with tried and true evidence or that you could post a retraction. There hasn't been fraud. The hundreds of other lawsuits around the country were filed by private citizens, local politicians and election officials. I have no idea what evidence, if any, was heard in those cases either. Most seem to be people protesting their vote was stolen or that they witnessed fraud.

Extraordinary claims should be supported by extraordinary evidence. Our elections have been run very, very well. There is no real evidence of fraud, there haven't been any court filings to support these fake claims of fraudulent voting. The only reason that these fake claims are rising above all the noise is due to DJT.

This is the same ‘market making’ type of ‘software’ control that ‘stabilized’ the markets, right into the 2008 meltdown.
Deciding which company lives or dies, deciding which candidate loses or wins.
Naked shorting America six ways to Sunday.
Circles, spinning around.
Makes you want to find a hill, let it all go and get off the merry go round for good.
Thinking of making a sequel to ‘Where the money went’
Call it ‘where the votes came from’.

hey pb- here is the link to news conf. yesterday in GA where the official spoke specifically to many/all of the bogus claims of fraud made by DJT and his followers. Very intelligent presentation. This official also spoke specifically to your posting of pics from a warehouse showing pallets of ballots that you proposed were evidence of fraud.... I hope you'll watch it. GA is a particularly good case to study for those claiming fraud in the machine counting of votes since they went through several audits, including HAND counting all the ballots. Amazing how thorough and careful they have been to ensure GA citizens had a free and fair election. One of the things that I notice about your postings is you are thoughtful enough to post corrections/updates when you find compelling and thorough evidence that runs counter to your claims. I truly hope you will watch the news conference plus research other reliable sources and post updates/corrections if warranted

The issue is that everything involved in the election has to be held for 22 months. This is for the purpose of auditing incase there are questions about the election. Even these “backup” ballots have to be kept for inspection.

They also did not address the video evidence and did not address it properly in the phone call with Trump.

Hey Patrick, please please don't take any materials from Ron Watkins and "Neon Revolt" so seriously. They are central figures in the Qookanon world, and their stuff is full of holes. Lin Wood has gone off the deep end with them, too..... please be careful not to harm your own credibility by embracing such characters.

Edward Solomon is reverse engineering an algorithm that has tampered with election results. He is seeing DJT votes flipped to JB. GA at least 25,630; PA at least 124,649; and MI at least 287,980. Unknown culprit (bad actor), but Solomon says, "They built manipulation with cinder blocks. They want you to believe it is natural stone." This is very complex math, but TRUTH.

Patrick, nothing from you since last night that I can find. I hope you are helping with the Italy story.....is it real? Please let it be and all the Natl Guard being sent to DC are not for Trump Supporters but for the left when the news is broken to them that their victory lap is about to end abruptly.

Patrick, you tweeted about info from voting machines being sent abroad during the GA Senate runoff. We're lawsuits filed by the GOP immediately?
